The Electric Loom Is Still Making the Famous "Moneybak" Fine Long Wearing Silks.

In space adjoining book department on the main floor we are giving demonstration of what an honest silk is, and how it is made.

A real electric loom is engaged in weaving silk just as it is woven at the mills. You see the raw silk in thousands of fibres, fed into this splendid piece of mechanism and running out in heavy, lustrous, beautiful soft fabrics fit for the queens of fashion.

The Silk is absolutely pure no adulteration. The Guarantee, 'MONEYBAK," is woven in every yard of the selvage.

To stimulate civic pride among the school children of this city, the Civic Improvement Association, at a committee meeting yesterday, planned a flower show for this fall, to be managed by the children in the local | forming poor, bewildered Harriet that she public schools. Exhibits will be educational in character, and in addition competitive displays of flowers grown in the several schools will be made. The association, according to present plans, will award a gold or silver trophy for the best display. It will be contested for yearly.

The matter will be more fully discussed at a meeting of the executive committee to-day at the Commercial Club. Superintendent Kendall, of the public schools, said yesterday: "I am heartily in favor of any all ends prettily. plan to promote interest in flower growing among the school children.' The Civic Improvement Association will furnish the seeds or plants necessary for the competition, and the students will do the cultivation. Tomlinson Hall will be rented for a number of days, should present plans carry, and the show will be liberally advertised. It will not be held for profit, and any surplus would be applied to purposes of civic improvement. As a further inducement toward beautifying school premises, it is planned to have a lecture delivered here, in which, on the methods used in the public schools of Bloomington, Ill., by J. K. the gay extravaganza, "The Wizard of Oz," will open an engagement of three nights and a Saturday matinee. This stage version of Frank Baum's fairy tale of the same title, with music by Paul Tietjens, has enjoyed wonderfully successful runs in Chicago and New York and has been pronounced by connoisseurs in folk-lore and juvenile fiction an imaginative creation worthy of the brothers Grimm, Hans Christian Andersen or Lewis Carroll. Although the main thread of the piece is a fairy story, the extravaganza has been constructed according to the most up-to-date formula, embracing all of the elements of smart musical comedy with the old-fashioned fun of the English pantomime. With the exception of a few bright interpolations, the musical numbers are all by Paul Tietjens, a young Chicago composer, who is looked upon as one of the coming men in comic opera composition. The piece is divided into three acts and nine scenes, and some of the stage settings
